HOLDS SALOONS ARE RESPONSIBLE

Crime Due to Existence of Places Where Liquor Is Sold, Declares Minister.

NATIONAL OFFICER IN UTAH IN CAUSE OF TEMPERANCE.

That 80 per cent of the crime, 65 per cent of the insanity and 50 per cent of the divorces of the world are due to strong drink was the plea that was urged by Rev. W. R. Fuller of Cleveland, O., who occupied the pulpit at the Phillips. Congregational church last evening in the interests of the Anti-Saloon league. In the course of his address Dr. Fuller quoted from Giadstone's famous talk when he said: "More than war, famine and pestilence England has ever suffered from strong drink."

The address of Dr. Fuller was on the work of the Anti-Saloon league. He began by saying that Utah and Nevada were the only states in the union in which there was not an anti-saloon organization.
His mission to this state is to organize a branch of the league and to establish it on the same footing with other states in this respect. He will remain here about two months. A convention in the interests of the Anti-Saloon league has been called for December 6 and 7 in Salt Lake.

Work in West.

The Rev. Dr. Fuller, who is the national organizer for the league, has just come from Wyoming, where he has or-ganized a branch of the society. In this work he was assisted by several prominent men of the state, who felt the ur-gency of this matter because of the fact that the last legislature of Colorado passed a local option law. This action on the part of Colorado was taken advantage of by several localities and many saloon-keepers were driven into Wyoming. To combat this influence many of the prom-inent citizens of Wyoming have aided in the establishment of the Anti-Saloon Temperance in the southern states was discussed at length by the speaker. He said that the people of the south were more essentially American than those of the north. The immigration in the north, in the opinion of the speaker, "causes us to look with more tolerance on the saloon influence." And again the people of the south are more abliques these the south are more religious than those of the north and in the south an atheist is looked upon in much the same way that a murderer would be.

Would Abolish Saloon.

The race question and the commission of the numerous crimes which cannot but result in lynching and lawlessness may all be solved, according to Dr. Fuller, through the abolition of the saloon. He called attention to the action in Texas, Oklahoma and Georgia against the saloons and pointed out that in Tennessee there were but seven places where a drink might be secured. might be secured.
"Why, in Kentucky." said the speaker.

where the corn is full of kernels and the colonels full of corn, there is a strong tendency toward temperance and in a year or two there will be no intoxicants sold in the state.

SUNSET ON THE PRAIRIES.

(J. W. Foley in New York Times.) They have tamed it with their harrows they have broken it with plows.
Where the bison used to range it some one's built himself a house; They have stuck it full of fence posts they have girded it with wire;

They have shamed it and profaned it with an automobile tire.
They have bridged its gullied rivers; they have peopled it with men; They have churched it, they have schooled it, they have steepled it-Amen; They have fullowed it with ridges, they have seeded it with grain And the west that was worth knowing, I shall never see again.

They have smothered all its campfires, where the beaten plainsman slept; They have driven up their cattle where the skulking coyote crept; have made themselves a pasture where the timid deer would browse,

Where the antelope were feeding they have dotted o'er with cows:
There's a yokel's tuneless whistling down the bison's winding trail, Where the red man's arrow fluttered there's a woman with a pail Driving up the cows for milking; they have cut its wild extent I remember in the 60s, when as far as

Ere the blight of man was endless acres lay

Just as God Almighty left them restful seventh day: When no sound rose from vastness but murmured hum and dim. Like the echoed void of silence in an un heard prairie hymn

And I lay at night and rested in my of blankets curled Much alone as if I was the only man in all the world.

But the prairie's passed, or passing, with the passing of the years.
Till there is no west worth knowing, and there are no ploneers:

They have riddled it with railroads, throbbing on and on and on.
They have riddled it of dangers till the zest of it is gone;
And I've saddled up my pony, for I'm dull and lonesome here. To go westward, westward, till we find a new frontier;

To get back to God's own wilderness and the skies we used to know-But there is no west; it's conquered-and I don't know where to go.

HEM AND HAW. (Pall Mall Gazette.)

Hem and Haw were the sons of Sin Hem lay 'round and Haw looked on, While God did all the work.

nd Haw was the father of all the tribe Who criticise today. God was an artist from the first,

As the sands of the sea were they;

was the father of bigots and bores

nd knew what he was about; ile over his shoulder peered these two And advised him to rub it out.

They prophesied ruin e'er man was made, "Such folly must surely fail;" And when he was done, "Do you think, my Lord, He's better without a tail?"

and still in the honest working world, With posture and hint and shirk.
These sons of the devil are standing by While man does all the work.

They balk endeavor and baffle reform In the sacred name of law; And over the quivering voice of Hem Is the droning voice of Haw.

Walters made a tramp ugly enough and dissipated enough to suit the most fastidious. The part of the heavy villain was taken by George Olmi. The play is presented in four acts. There is nothing out of the ordinary in the plot, but it is complicated enough to hold the interest and give Miss Golding opportunities to display her versatility. Miss Golding, Eva Lappin and E. Walters gave pleasure in their singing specialties. There was not a vacant seat at the Grand last evening and the outlook is for a
